VET CPD Courses: Learner Journey Planner

Module Sequencing & Content

There are seven CPD modules available to enhance your skills, knowledge and competence. You can take these modules in any order as they are designed to be independent from each other so students can select the modules that suit their learning needs best at the time of their engagement in this CPD activity.

Each independent module has 5 units of learning. The Units will vary slightly but they will all have a variety of learning materials – reading, videos, power points, learning activities.

Module Duration & Study Hours

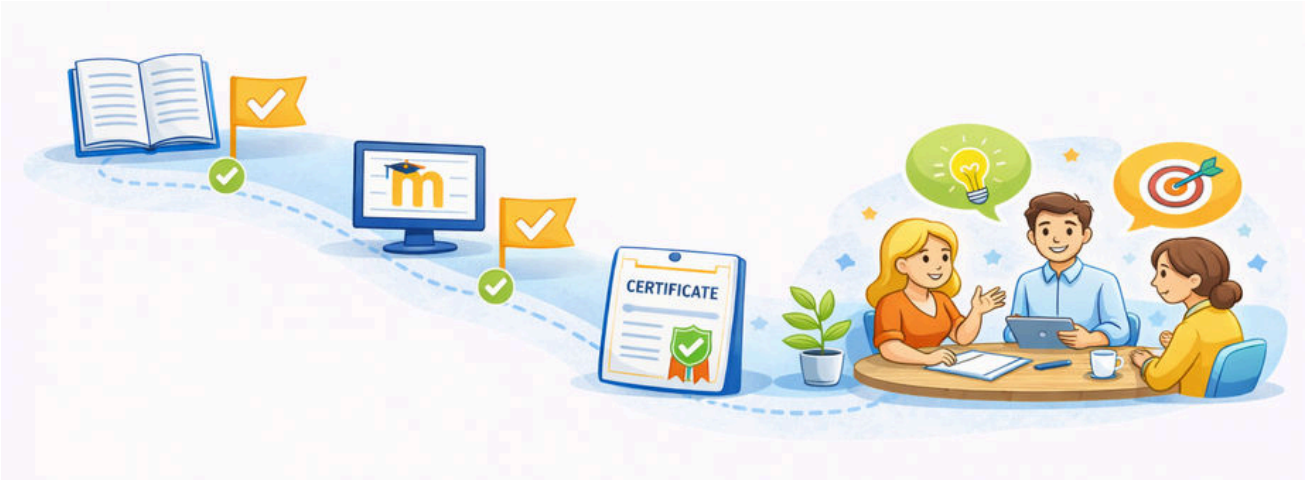
Each module, that has 5 units of learning is designed to take you around 60 total study hours.

Each learning unit should take around 12 hours.
These modules are self-paced, so there's no fixed weekly schedule. You're in control of when and how you study.

We recommend:

- Try to set aside enough time each week to complete one Unit.
- In the following week, focus on the learning activities linked to that Unit.

This way, the material will still be fresh in your mind, making it easier to apply your learning and build your skills step by step.
But don't worry if life gets busy — you can always return to the material at any time. Everything will remain available, so you can revisit, review, and refresh your learning whenever you need.



Milestones

As you complete each module of learning there will be xxxx on the moodle site so you can keep track of your progress.

After completing each module and the associated learning activities, you will be able to download your completion certificate.

Support Reminders

Learn with others: As you move through the modules and units, take the opportunity to discuss with colleagues what you're learning. Talking it through helps you understand and remember more.

Technical support: If you experience any difficulties using the Moodle site, please contact [insert contact name/email/phone].

Look after yourself: Balancing work and study can be challenging. Be kind to yourself and set realistic goals for what you can achieve each week.
Work at your pace: These modules are designed to be flexible — you can always revisit a unit or activity whenever you need.

Stay motivated: Celebrate small wins (finishing a unit, completing an activity) — they all add up to big progress over time.
